ISPA PRE BUDGET SEMINAR

The ISPA held a Seminar on Tuesday 20th November 2012 at 6.30pm in Management House, DIT Aungier Street. The theme of this seminar was Minimum Income Standards for Ireland – Implications for Budget 2013. Speakers at this event were Dr Michael Collins, Senior Research Officer, Nevin Economic Research Institute and Sister Bernadette McMahon, Vincentian Partnership, Dublin. The seminar drew on the research of the Vincentian Partnership published by Trinity College's Policy Institute (A Minimum income Standard for Ireland) and offered a detailed analysis of the income families of different types require to meet basic needs. This research offers a unique perspective on the implications of budgetary decisions for families – especially low-income families in Ireland today. Further details on the presentations given will be available from the members section of the ISPA website shortly. The ISPA hopes to hold another seminar soon. Please check the ISPA website www.ispa.ie for regular updates.

UPCOMING/RECENT PUBLICATIONS FROM THE POLICY PRESS (UK)

- The Squeezed Middle: the pressure of ordinary workers in America and Britain edited by Sophia Parker. As wages stagnate but living costs keep rising, the pressure on working people grows more intense. No longer can workers assume that when the economy grows their wages will grow with it. This collection brings together for the first time leading economic and policy thinkers to analyse the impact of different policies on those on low-to middle incomes and to explain what lessons the UK can learn from America's 'lost generation'. This timely book is essential reading for everyone concerned about the living standards crisis, an issue which could decide elections as well as shaping the future for millions of working families.
- Democracy under attack: How the media distort policy and politics by Malcolm Dean. This book offers a unique insider's perspective and a detailed and valuable account of news production in Britain and will give readers a flavour of what goes on in news rooms, pressure groups, departmental policy divisions and parliament.
- Mental health users in research: critical sociological perspectives edited by Patsy Staddon. This book aims to show the value but also the difficulties encountered in the application of 'insider knowledge' in service user research. Mental health service users in research considers ways of 'doing research' which bring multiple understandings together effectively, and explains the sociological use of autobiography and its relevance. It examines how our identity shapes the knowledge we produce, and asks why voices which challenge contemporary beliefs about health and the role of treatment are often silenced. An imbalance of power and opportunity for service users, and the stigmatising nature of services, are considered as human rights issues. Most of the contributors to the book are service users/survivors as well as academics. Their fields of expertise include LGB issues, racial tensions, and recovering from the shame and stigma of alcoholism. They stress the importance of research approaches which involve mutualities of respect and understanding within the worlds of researcher, clinician and service user/survivor.
