Welcome

It is a great pleasure to welcome you to this Irish Social Policy Association (ISPA) research conference.

A core objective of the ISPA is to provide a forum for the analysis, discussion and development of social policy in Ireland – and I believe that today's conference will do exactly that. Throughout the day a total of 50 research papers will be presented across 16 sessions. They cover topics including housing, health, low pay, poverty, one-parent families, basic income, labour market issues and public services. Collectively they showcase the breadth of research being undertaken in Irish social policy. The conference is also timely, a point highlighted by our theme of 'Social Policy in Recession and Recovery'.

Today's event is the product of many months of work by the ISPA committee, all of whom have contributed in various ways to its emergence (see list on page 3). In particular thanks go to Eamon Murphy (conference secretary), Eoin Carroll (ISPA secretary) and Michelle Murphy (ISPA treasurer) with whom I have had the pleasure of working closely as we planned and developed this conference. Thanks also to Noelle Cotter and colleagues at the SRA and Mo Flynn and colleagues at the IGS.

Finally, I hope you enjoy the day, engage with the research and interact with fellow researchers, advocates and policy makers. I also hope you keep in contact with the ISPA as we enter our 20th year.

Dr Micheál Collins
Chairman
ISPA

About the ISPA

The Irish Social Policy Association, which was established in 1997, aims to provide a forum for the analysis, discussion and development of social policy in Ireland, North and South. The inspiration to form a cross border Association dedicated to social policy in Ireland came from Dr Patricia Kennedy and Dr Nessa Winston from the Department of Social Policy and Social Work, University College Dublin.

The Association endeavours to broaden the debate on social policy by providing a forum for discussion that embraces the views and opinion of a wide range of relevant actors. ISPA brings together professionals and non-professionals with an interest in social policy, academics, policy makers, officials in the civil service and public service bodies, employer and trade union organisations as well as organisations and groups in the not-for-profit sector. Through the Association, discussions and debates have been stimulated on a variety of contemporary social policy issues.

Further details are available on the ISPA website www.ispa.ie

CONFERENCE PROGRAMME

9:30 – 10:30 Welcome, Opening Plenary (Room 1)

WELCOME ADDRESS from ISPA Chairman Micheál Collins

PLENARY: SOCIAL POLICY IN RECESSION AND RECOVERY

The last decade has been one of dramatic change for Ireland. Through boom, bust, austerity and recovery, Irish society has experienced challenges, opportunities, successes and failures. Throughout the period, the impact of these experiences has been felt differently by people in different sectors, regions, age groups and socio-economic categories. Given the dramatic nature of these changes, questions arise for all areas of policy, including social policy, as we look back and look forward.

Speakers in this session consider the conference theme before discussion is opened to the floor.

The Irish Social Policy Association (ISPA) is delighted to host today's conference in association with the Social Research Association (SRA) and with the support of a number of other organisations and institutions.

Alongside providing some financial support for the conference, conference sessions 2 and 12 have been organised with the SRA.

The Social Research Association (SRA) is a UK and Ireland organisation. SRA is a professional membership body; led by social researchers, for social researchers. Promoting high quality standards of social research, we seek to represent, support, connect and inform our members and the wider social research community. SRA (Ireland) seeks to build capacity and connect social research and researchers through our training events and seminars throughout the year. Please see the Ireland homepage for further information: <http://the-sra.org.uk/home/sra-ireland/>

Conference sessions 9 and 13 have been organised with the Irish Gerontological Society (IGS).

The IGS is one of the oldest societies in the world devoted to the study of ageing. Its core purposes are (i) education and research in the study of ageing; and (ii) promoting a better understanding by the general public of ageing and related issues. The IGS is a national, multidisciplinary professional society with membership available to: health and social-care professionals; academics involved in the study of ageing; and those concerned with advocacy for older people. Our activities include an annual scientific meeting which is held each September, the hosting of a series of seminars and study days, and the publication of newsletters. Please see www.irishgerontology.com for further details.
